COTTON KING FAILS FOR MILLIONS OF DOLLARS

Decline.

Daniel J. Sully & Co., Leaders of the Bull Clique, Broke Beyond Redemption.

Toward the end of the first half hour early sellers started to cover, and there was a rapid advance. There was nothing in the news to account for the excitement. It seemed merely a renewal of bear operations and the clinching of further stop orders.

Shortly after the afternoon session

there was a lull in the pit, and at about five minutes after 2 o'clock the announcement of the suspension was made by Superintendent King, who read from the rostrum this notice:

Outside the cotton exchange appearances gave little indication of the pandemonium within until the messengers began to rush between the exchanges and the brokers' offices. Soon the news reached the stock, produce and coffee exchanges, and the traders on these markets hastened to see the panic. But a double guard was placed at the doors, and admittance was refused to all but those accompanied by members.

It was estimated that something like 750,000 bales of cotton were traded in during the twenty minutes of panic that followed the announcement, and that of this upwards of 500,000 bales represent-out of men whose margins have been nearly or quite wiped out. As the market slumped 150 points during this period, the loss falling on this classification.

ket slumped 150 points during this period, the loss falling on this element amounted to something more than $1.000.000.

The market steadied after about twenty minutes, and then there was a sudden upward shoot of about 100 points. This sharp upward rise was brought about by the buying of brokers and speculators who saw that the market had slumped too far and would react. A part of the excitement on the floor of the exchange was caused by the scramble of brokers who wanted just such bargains and had to fight to get in the ring to get them. The buying rush was almost as exciting and just as noisy as the selling panic.

Established a Businss.

He established a Cotton house of his own last year, under the name of Daniel J. Sully & Co., but when his operations in cotton became so successful, the cotton market having been pushed up above 17c a pound early this year, he widened the scope of his firm's business, bought a seat on the New York stock exchange, got a membership on the Chicago board of trade, and it was said, made connections with other prominent exchanges throughout the couttry.

The members of the firm were Daniel J. Sully, Colonel S. F. B. Morse of Houston, Tex., Walter S. Crandeil and Edwin Hadley, jr. Recently William get in the ring to get them. The buy-ing rush was almost as exciting and just as noisy as the selling panic.

from half a point to a plant to a plant half on the fear that the failure might being a rush of stocks selling. The weakness was only momentary, for word was passed around that Sully had not been trading in stocks, and that the clearing house sheets had never shown a single transaction by him. The market was reassured and stocks went up again.

The half of the failure might have been followed closely. Call speculators followed his example and advice and not a few profited handsomely last year. In manufacturing circles, however, there has been little sympathy with Suny, and will owners and agents were pronounced in expressing the belief that the suspension would do much towards relieving the uncertain situation in the textile
